Calvin Presbyterian Church

Last Updated: February 2025

Historical Sketch

Calvin Presbyterian Church Abbotsford, B.C. began as a mission church in 1946. It was a predominantly Hungarian-speaking church before becoming bilingual, and then an English-speaking church. In 2016, it moved into a new building on the corner of Highway 11 and Hazelwood.

Aberarder, Ontario

St. John's Presbyterian Church

Last Updated: February 2025

Historical Sketch

St. John's Presbyterian Church, Aberarder, Ontario, has its origins in the congregation of Smith's Presbyterian Church, McKay Settlement, Ontario, which was established in 1868 as a joint congregation (seeming to have one Kirk Session) with St. James Presbyterian Church, Forest, Ontario. In May of 1884, this union was dissolved, and Smith's Church was joined with the church in Camlachie, Ontario, again it appears to be with a united Kirk Session for both congregations. However, on September 6th, 1885, this union was dissolved, and Smith's Church was closed and replaced with St. John's Presbyterian Church, Aberarder. St. John's Church was dissolved on August 28, 1966.

Acton, Ontario

Knox Presbyterian Church

Last Updated: February 2025

Historical Sketch

Knox Presbyterian Church, Acton, Ontario, was established in February 1845 and the first church was a frame building on Main Street. This building was completed in 1847 and was used until 1895 when a new (present) church was built. The frame building was turned parallel to the street and converted to a triple dwelling. The site of the new church, at the corner of Main Street and Knox Avenue, was several building lots "to the left" of the first church building. The cornerstone was laid in 1894 and the new church opened in February 1895. A choir was formed in 1880, and an organ was bought in 1892 after some controversy. The first minister of Knox, Acton, was The Rev. John McLachlan who served until 1861; the second was The Rev. Lachlan A. Cameron serving from 1862 to 1874. The home of Rev. John McLachlan was bought from his estate by Knox, Acton and was used as a manse until 1889, when a new manse was built on Willow Street. At the time of Church Union in 1925, the congregation voted to remain within The Presbyterian Church in Canada.

Ailsa Craig, Ontario

Ailsa Craig Presbyterian Church

Last Updated: February 2025

Historical Sketch

The congregation of the Ailsa Craig Presbyterian Church was organized by the London Presbytery on November 17th, 1870. The first minister was the Rev. J. Rennie, who continued to serve the congregation until 1888. The first church, a white brick structure, was built on the North side of Main Street. It was opened for services in 1871. The church was rebuilt in 1929, at 115 Queen Street. In 1944, the congregations of Ailsa Craig and Nairn were made a two-point charge. Many of the members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Nairn, Ontario became part of the Ailsa Craig congregation when their church closed in 1947. In 1961, Ailsa Craig and Bethel, formerly Proof Line, became one charge. The membership at Ailsa Craig dwindled after 1960 and the congregation disbanded in 2007.

Alberton, Ontario

Alberton Presbyterian Church

Last Updated: February 2025

Historical Sketch

Alberton Presbyterian Church, Ontario, was established ca. 1855. The congregation was also known as the United Presbyterian Church of Ancaster West, and with the formation of the Canada Presbyterian Church in 1861, as the Canada Presbyterian Church of Ancaster West. The congregation was joined with the congregations in Ancaster Village and Ancaster East (Carluge) as a three-point charge until 1870. With the union of the various branches of Presbyterianism in the country in 1875, the church in Alberton became part of The Presbyterian Church in Canada. In 1925, the congregation voted against joining the United Church of Canada. The congregation dissolved in 2023.

Alberton Presbyterian Church

Last Updated: February 2025

Historical Sketch

Alberton Presbyterian Church on Prince Edward Island was formed in 1925 by those members of the original Alberton Presbyterian Church (est. 1831) that voted against Church Union and desired to remain part of The Presbyterian Church in Canada. The majority of the members voted to become a United Church. Alberton P.C. became part of a two-point charge with West Point in 1948. This arrangement last until December 2005 when Alberton amalgamated with West Point.

Historical Sketch

The congregation of Alice Presbyterian Church traces its origins to the mid-1800s. In 1865, the congregation in Alice was one of six preaching stations in the area. By 1873, the congregation was formally organized as a mission station and was joined with the churches in Petawawa and Indian River, under one Kirk Session. The church in Indian River seems to have been dissolved around 1904, with its members being accepted into the Alice and Petawawa congregations. In 1938, the Alice and Petawawa churches were separated. In 1960, the congregation of Alice Presbyterian Church merged with First Presbyterian Church, Pembroke, Ontario.

Historical Sketch

Knox Presbyterian Church, Alliston, Ontario was established in 1925 as Chalmer's Presbyterian Church, Alliston. The original Knox Presbyterian Church, which was formed in Alliston in 1862, became Knox United Church in 1925. With the majority of the members voting to enter Church Union, the minority went on to form Chalmer's. In 1951, the congregation purchased the property and building of Knox United Church (which had merged with the other United Church in Alliston) and moved into their old building, re-taking the name Knox Presbyterian Church.

Historical Sketch

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Alma, Ontario was founded c.1854. At that time the members of the congregation met for worship in the school, and were served by The Rev. John Duff, minister at Knox Presbyterian Church, Elora. In 1866 a church was built in Alma. The congregation was then joined with Zion Presbyterian Church, Nichol, as a two-point charge, and together they called Mr. John Davidson to be their minister. A new church building was erected in 1893. At the time of Church Union, the minister became United, however, the congregation voted to remain within The Presbyterian Church in Canada.

Almonte Presbyterian Church

Last Updated: February 2025

Historical Sketch

Almonte Presbyterian Church, Almonte, Ontario, was established in 1925. Presbyterianism in the Almonte area, however, has its roots in two earlier churches: the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, which was established ca. 1833, and the congregation of St. John's Presbyterian Church, which was established ca. 1845. These two churches amalgamated in 1912 and took the name Almonte Presbyterian Church. In 1925, however, the majority of this congregation voted to enter Church Union. The minority that wished to remain within The Presbyterian Church in Canada then formed a new Almonte Presbyterian Church, and purchased and renovated the old St. John's Presbyterian Church building, which was opened in October 1925.

Historical Sketch

Guthrie Presbyterian Church, Alvinston, Ontario was organized in 1874. From 1875-1878, the congregation in Alvinston was linked with the congregations of Cameron Presbyterian Church, Euphemia, and Chalmer's Presbyterian Church, Brooke. In 1878, however, services were discontinued in Euphemia, and shortly afterwards, so too were services in Brooke, with the members of these congregations worshipping in Alvinston instead. In 1888, the congregation at Brooke was re-established, and in 1891, so too was Cameron Church, Euphemia. The original church building in Alvinston was erected c. 1873 and was replaced with a new building in 1897. A fire in 1914 destroyed this building and a new church was erected in 1915. The congregation in Alvinston voted to remain within The Presbyterian Church in Canada at the time of Church Union in 1925.

Ancaster, Ontario

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church

Last Updated: February 2025

Historical Sketch

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Ancaster, Ontario traces its origins to 1826, when The Rev. George Sheed was sent as missionary to the area by the Established Church of Scotland. Rev. Sheed established St. Andrew's Church in Ancaster and served as minister until his death ca. 1832. The congregation was then served by the Rev. Mark Young Stark from 1834 until the Disruption in 1844. During this time, St. Andrew's was linked with the church in West Flamborough, with a joint Kirk Session. In 1844, some members of the congregation followed Rev. Stark and left the Church of Scotland to form a "Free Church" congregation in Ancaster. Following the Disruption, services at St. Andrew's, Ancaster were led by The Rev. Andrew Bell (until c.1847), and by The Rev. Kenneth McLennan (until c. 1857). With the departure of McLennan, the congregation was left without a regular minister, however, from 1858 until 1875, services of worship were conducted by The Rev. Robert Burnet, of St. Andrew's Church, Hamilton. The "Free Church" congregation was served by The Rev. Stark until 1854, when the two congregations of Dundas and Ancaster were divided. In addition to St. Andrew's Church and the "Free Church" congregation, a third Presbyterian church was established in Ancaster ca. 1854, when a United Presbyterian congregation was formed. In 1861, however, this congregation united with the "Free Church" congregation. Then, in 1875, the various branches of Presbyterian groups in Canada united to form "The Presbyterian Church in Canada". With this union the two congregations in Ancaster were also united, under the name St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. St. Andrew's voted to remain within The Presbyterian Church in Canada at the time of Church Union in 1925.

Arthur, Ontario

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church

Last Updated: February 2025

Historical Sketch

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Arthur, Ontario, was originally founded ca. 1857, although services of worship were conducted in the area by the ministers from Fergus prior to this time. Up to 1874, there were two Presbyterian congregations in Arthur: one was the Auld Kirk, which formed part of the Presbyterian Church of Canada in connection with the Church of Scotland; and the other was Knox Presbyterian Church, which was connected to the "Free" Presbyterian Church of Canada. These two congregations joined together in 1874, one year prior to the amalgamation of their two parent bodies. At that time the congregation took the name St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. In 1925, the congregation voted to remain within The Presbyterian Church in Canada.

Burn's Presbyterian Church

Last Updated: February 2025

Historical Sketch

Burn's Presbyterian Church, Ashburn, Ontario traces its origins to 1849 when a mission station was established in the village. From 1850 to 1855, the congregation in Ashburn was linked with the Whitby and Utica, Ontario, churches. From 1864 to 1865, the congregation was linked with the church in Prince Albert; and then in 1868 it became linked once again with Breadalbane Church in Utica. This connection lasted until 1910, when Burn's Presbyterian Church became a self-sustaining congregation. At the time of Church Union in 1925, the congregation voted to remain within The Presbyterian Church in Canada.

Ashfield Presbyterian Church

Last Updated: February 2025

Historical Sketch

Ashfield Presbyterian Church was first established as a mission station in 1848 in connection with the Presbyterian Church of Canada. By 1860 it had been erected as a congregation and a building had been constructed. In 1925 the majority remained in the Presbyterian Church in Canada. In 1939 Ashfield was linked with Bervie and Ripley in a three-point charge, and in 1940 was linked with Ripley alone as a two-point charge.

Athelstan Presbyterian Church

Last Updated: February 2025

Historical Sketch

The congregation of Athelstan Presbyterian Church in Quebec dates from 1835. The original church building, erected in that year, was replaced with a newer building in 1877. From 1954 until 1970, the Athelstan congregation was linked with those in Rockburn and Elgin, while from 1970 until 1983, Athelstan and Elgin were linked with St. Andrew's Church, Huntingdon. On December 31st, 1982, the Athelstan and Elgin congregations amalgamated. Since 1983, Athelstan has been linked with St. Andrew's, Huntingdon. The exact date of the establishment of the Elgin congregation is not known, however, it was linked with Athelstan as early as 1861. In 1846, some members of the Athelstan congregation, along with some from the congregation in Huntingdon, split to form a new church as part of the United Presbyterian Church of Canada. This congregation, which became known as the Second Presbyterian Church, Huntingdon, merged with St. Andrew's Church, Huntingdon, on June 7th, 1894.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church

Last Updated: February 2025

Historical Sketch

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Atikokan, Ontario was formed in 1953. From 1947 until the formation of their own congregation, Presbyterians in the town worshipped in the First Protestant Church. This was an Anglican congregation, however, some non-Anglicans served on the Board and some services were designed to suit non-Anglicans. Prior to 1947, Protestants met occasionally for worship with student ministers or missionaries leading worship. Mr. E. McKinlay, a student minister from Knox College, Toronto, arrived in May 1954 and served until September, when the first ordained minister, Rev. W.C. Inglis, was called to the church. He was followed by Rev. Gordon Bastedo, who served from 1955 to 1960. Work was begun on the construction of a church building in 1955; it was officially opened in June 1956. St. Andrew's Church in Atikokan was formally dissolved on Sept. 27th, 1997.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church

Last Updated: February 2025

Historical Sketch

St. Andrews Presbyterian Church in Aurora, Ontario, was formed in 1871. It was established first as a mission station (under the Presbytery of Toronto, Canada Presbyterian Church), then that same year, as a regular congregation. St. Andrew's held services in the Mechanic's Hall from 1871 until the church building was completed in 1873. In 1875 and 1876, the congregation was linked with St. Andrew's, Newmarket and was served by the Reverend George Bruce. In 1876 however, St. Andrew's, Aurora severed its connection with Newmarket and the congregation called their own minister, the Reverend Walter Amos. He served for 36 years to 1912. During this period the congregation was known as "The Aurora Presbyterian Church". As well, from 1879 to 1912, the congregation of East King became part of the St. Andrew's, Aurora charge. Some years later, in 1941, St. Andrew's, Aurora was linked with Richmond Hill and Thornhill forming a three-point charge. This arrangement continued until 1948, when once again St. Andrew's, Aurora operated on its own. A wing was added to the church in 1886 and in 1952, St. Andrew's Hall was completed and opened. In 1962, a new church building replaced the old on the same site.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church

Last Updated: February 2025

Historical Sketch

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was formed in 1876. Construction of a church building, situated on what is now called "Paul's Hill", was begun in 1875 and completed in 1877. In 1890, a new church was erected within the village of Avonmore itself. This church was destroyed by fire in 1945 and replaced with a new building on the same site. The congregation was linked with the Presbyterian church in Lunenburg, Ontario, until 1892. In 1905 it was linked with the congregation in Gravel Hill. The church was officially named St. Andrew's at a congregational meeting on January 17, 1929.

Ayr Presbyterian Church

Last Updated: February 2025

Historical Sketch

Ayr Presbyterian Church was formed in 1926-1927 by the continuing Presbyterian minority in Ayr who left Knox Presbyterian Church when it entered the United Church of Canada in 1925. The congregation was linked with Galt in 1942 and dissolved in 1953. Prior to 1925, two Presbyterian congregations were established – Stanley Street Presbyterian Church around 1840 and Knox Presbyterian Church around 1844. In 1913, Knox and Stanley Street were amalgamated as Knox Presbyterian Church and this congregation entered union in 1925.

Ayton, Ontario

Knox Presbyterian Church

Last Updated: February 2025

Historical Sketch

The congregation of Knox Presbyterian Church in Ayton, Ontario traces its origins to the mid-1800s when a Presbyterian settlers met for worship in a small Orange Hall. In 1858, land and timber were donated by John Booth and a church building was constructed. A burial ground was located to the west of the building. Throughout its history, the congregation has been a part of a two-point charge. In the early years it was affiliated with the congregation in East Normanby, and then later with the congregation south of Mildmay. In 1925, it was affiliated with St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Hanover, Ontario and continued as a two-point charge with this congregation until Knox dissolved in March 2005.
